"The South 40"
by JAMES A. SMITH EXTENSION AGENT

On Thursday, April 28, we identified for the first time the cereal leaf beetle in several wheat fields in the Stonewall area of the county.

This is an imported insect that was first identified in Michigan in 1962. For several years we had anticipated its appearance here. At this time we are not recommending any insect control recommendations. If the insect follows a similar pattern as last year growers can expect greater damage to spring seed oats than fall seeded grain.

You may want to check your small grain and at least become familiar with the insect and be alert for possible heavy damage. The cereal leaf beetle is considered a serious pest of grain crops.

Statewide 40% of expected private applicators of pesticides have been certified. In Appomattox County less than 20% have been certified. Hopefully this week you will receive a list of pesticides that are being considered for receiving a restricted label. Read it carefully.

With the dry weather of recent weeks we may be headed for another short spring hay crop. Orchard grass and fescue is heading out at 12 to 14 inches high.

Some soybean producers may be jumping the gun just a little bit on planting dates. The optimum planting dates for full season soybeans is May 20 to June 10. Earlier planted soybeans (May 1 - May 20) will yield just as well but frequently weed problems develop late in the season. After June 10 yields decrease rapidly as date of planting is delayed.

For double cropped soybeans following small grain, each day that soybean planting is delayed after the grain is harvested is money down the drain. Consider no-till soybeans to gain a few days, preserve the limited moisture, and save energy and money by reducing tillage costs.

Four years work at the Warsaw Station shows full season beans out yield double crop beans by 5 to 10 bushels per acre and that no-till soybeans will out-yield conventionally planted beans by 3 to 5 bushels per acrea.

Beans should be worth at least $7 this fall. Proper pH, fertilization and weed control are essential for top production.

Sheep are the most profitable livestock that you can own today. I know of one source that will receive between May 5 and 10 about 400 blackface western yearling ewes.

This may be the year to add a flock on your farm. You can put one ewe to each cow and never miss the grass. This is a profit opportunity we ought to take a look at.

Feeder cattle prices are up because fed cattle were up $2.00 to $2.75 on national markets last week.

* * *

We have a very interesting test using Ralgro implants on the W. E. Bondurant and Sons cattle operation. There are 12 check steers receiving no implant, 9 have received one implant and the third group of 19 have received one and will get the 2nd on August 1. We will have weights this fall to measure the effect.

DEADLY PARLOR GAMES

Unbelievable as it may seem, many adolescents, and regrettably, even grown men, play games of death with guns. The most foolish is Russian Roulette, in which a person inserts one bullet into a revolver, twirls the chamber, places the muzzle against his temple, and pulls the trigger - gambling that he won't be shot. All too often, he is. About 70 persons a year senselessly die from this incredible stunt.

Another deadly parlor game is the fast draw. A California teen-ager shot himself in the thigh when jerking a gun from his holster. A Chicago man, trying to outdraw a cowboy on television, whipped out his six-shooter and blasted his wife in the stomach. Another man shot down his young son who toddled into range. Their one common mistake was using live ammunition. Fast draw pros use nothing but blanks.
